

Leadership Part 2

Who comes to mind immediately when you hear the word “leader?”

Do you consider yourself a leader? In what area(s) of your life are you in a position to lead others? (i.e. family, workplace, community)

What mission have you set forth to accomplish? Considering that “inspired” leaders are those who want something FOR you rather than FROM you, how can you communicate what you want FOR those whom you are in a position to lead? How can you tell whether or not a leader is inspired by a mission?

In Luke 10:38-42, we see a solid example of Martha being wrapped up in the busyness of life, allowing her to-do list to take precedence over the better choice. What was that “better choice” that Martha’s sister Mary had chosen?

What are you missing out on when you allow yourself to be defined by your accomplishments of fulfilling tasks toward the current need? Does God want something for you that is clouded by the blur of your to-do list?

In the next week, as you look to your calendar, find some space to create some margin. Use that time and space to ask God to show you what activity/appointment/task on your calendar has the greatest potential for you to change hearts and eternity.
